

The military post known as Fort Cameron, near Beaver, Utah, which was permanently evacuated by the United States troops during the present week, was first established on the 25th day of May, 1872, almost eleven years ago, the first troops sent there being four companies of the Eighth United States Infantry, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Wilkins. Judge Hawley, the first Judge of that Judicial District, claims the credit of having the Government establish a Post there, not for the purpose of fighting Indians, but for the sole object of enforcing the judicial decrees of his court.

Nevada, says the Virginia Enterprise, has contributed about $476,000,000 to the world's stock of the precious metals, of which at least $140,000,000 was in gold, the chief part extracted from the argenteiferous ores. Of this vast amount, a single lode (the Comstock) supplied from $293,000,000 to $315,000,000. A mean between the various estimates would make the product about $306,000,000.

President Bonney, of the Illinois Bar Association, in commenting on the manner in which technicalities have driven Justice out of American courts, says: "Let the law provide that no judgment may be set aside or reversed, in any case, civil or criminal, provided it shall appear from the whole record that substantial justice has been done." This will cure the existing difficulty.

Acting on a report presented by M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, the French Academy of Sciences has published the declaration that the town of Baume possessed the first steamboat, which was navigated on the Doubs a quarter of a century before Fulton tried his boat, and that the important discovery of applying steam power to the propulsion of vessels is due to a French savant, Claude de Jouffroy. A committee has been formed for the purpose of promoting the erection of a monument to the latter in his native town of Besencon. M. de Lesseps appeals to all French seaport towns, ship-builders, ship-owners, steam navigation companies and others to participate in this act of rehabilitation of justice and of patriotism. It is a question, it is asserted, of glorifying in Claude de Jouffroy the memory of a misrepresented Frenchman, a martyr of science and a benefactor of mankind.

WINGED THREE WITH ONE SHOT.—A Dakota schoolmistress and three young men for breach of promise. Counsel for one of the defendants moved for a nonsuit, on the ground that she was too promiscuous. The Court seemed disposed to grant the motion, whereupon the plaintiff asked: "Judge, did you ever go duck shooting?" His Honor's eye lighted up with the pride of a sportsman as he answered, "Well, I should say so; many's the time I've brought down half a dozen at a shot." "I knew it," eagerly added the fair plaintiff, "and that's just the case with me, Judge. A flock of these fellows besieged me, and I winged three of them." The motion for a nonsuit was denied.—[Brooklyn Eagle.]

The Secretary of the Interior has decided that in the case of lands claimed under the Desert Land law, that the question of the character of lands that have been reclaimed from a desert state, and are now producing crops by means of irrigating ditches, etc., are not subject to entry under the Desert Land law. A desert land entry of 640 acres cannot embrace land in such form that the tracts in linear extent shall exceed one mile and a quarter. In entries of smaller quantities, the side lines must be reduced in proportion. A school section, or part thereof, cannot be embraced in a desert land entry.

Nellie Hubbard, daughter of the ex-Governor of Connecticut, who eloped with and married her father's coachman, was divorced in New York on Saturday. The cause was abandonment. No counter charge was made. It is thought by some that Mrs. Shepard, having discomfited herself of her plebeian husband, will be welcomed back to her father's house, but the general opinion is that ex-Governor Hubbard will never recall the denunciation he pronounced against his daughter four years ago.

Yesterday afternoon a citizen well known for his love of field sport and hunting dogs was dilating upon the fine points of a setter dog which one of his friends had presented him. After going over the minor points of perfection he came at last to the chief feature—the nose. "Just look at that dog's nose—look at it! Did you ever see a nose like that on an dog? Of course you didn't. Why, hang it, he's got a nose like a County Assessor."—[Va. Chronicle.]

YOU CANNOT KILL A PIG WITH ARSENIC.—"It is an astonishing thing," said a cynic, "that you cannot kill a pig with arsenic. I had a friend who was an enthusiastic chemist. He had preserved a lot of cherries in an arsenical solution, and having no further use for them threw them one morning from his laboratory window. A rambling porker, on the lookout for edible trifles, saw them drop, and looking them over and contrasting them with the usual expanse of tile, old tin cans and brickbats on which it had been his daily wont to browse, eagerly swallowed them. My friend was alarmed, and visions of a bill for the value of a dead and uneatable pig rose like a spectre before his eyes. He chased the pig away and thought perhaps its death might not be laid at his door if the pig was not there when it expired. The incident warned him; but on the following morning he was dumfounded to see the pig waiting for more of the deadly fruit. Some were prepared, for my friend was an investigator, and doled out to his hogship. He devoured them, and granted a muffled pean in their praise. Each morning that pig returned, and each morning the dose was increased until my friend was ruined and the pig's confidence in arsenical cherries stronger than ever."

We have heard much lately about Justice Haight of Pennsylvania living many days after a bullet had been fired into his brain. A more peculiar case is now a resident of this county. George Sinsel of Newfane was a private in the Eighth New York Heavy Artillery. At the charge on the rebel works at Petersburg on the 16th day of June, 1864, a minnie ball struck him in the head, breaking the skull. The ball divided, part going outside and part going under the skull. For three days he lay on the field and was reported dead. After this time he wandered into a hospital and was treated, the physicians taking out a number of bones from his head. He was then sent to St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester. While there he was under the care of Dr. Moore, and on the 23d day of October following, Dr. Bradley, the Assistant Surgeon, took from the unhealed wound a piece of rebel lead, which had lain there over four months. Now Mr. Sinsel is as well, apparently, as ever, though he has a depression in his skull large enough to hide a walnut, and over which there is no skull bone. This case was a wonder to the surgeons at the time it occurred, and a greater wonder to the man himself that he should be alive.—[Lockport Journal.]

The Middletown (Del.) Transcript sets aside its editorial dignity long enough to say that "those who write for a sample copy of the paper must inclose a postage stamp, not for publication, but as an evidence that they don't take us for a bald-headed philanthropist, with a gold-headed cane and an income of $700,000 a year, who is printing a paper for amusement and paying the postage for fun."

Eureka Sentinel: The outlook in the Eureka Tunnel grows better from day to day almost continuously. In the south end of the Addison chamber, Gen.
